May is Mental Health Awareness Month. Pickens County has several activities planned throughout May to raise awareness and educate staff and citizens, including a Mental Health First Aid class to equip first responders with life-saving skills.

Pickens County Council supports mental health awareness, as evidenced by unanimous passage of Resolution 2021-15 recognizing May 2021 as Mental Health Month, Resolution 2021-19 recognizing September 2021 as National Suicide Prevention Month, and Resolution 2022-13 recognizing May 2022 as Mental Health Month in Pickens County. The ongoing efforts to educate and equip citizens with life-saving information and tools promoting mental wellness and safety in times of crisis springs from the county’s involvement in the SAMHSA-led Crisis Intercept Mapping for Suicide Prevention among Service Members, Veterans, and their Families (SMVF) initiative.

Pickens County’s SMVF Crisis Intercept Mapping (CIM) team includes local, regional, and state level stakeholders from both military and civilian government and nonprofit organizations who met over approximately six months to create a visual map of how individuals are ushered through the county’s crisis care system, with particular focus on where there may be gaps in services as individuals move from one intercept to another. The county’s Crisis Intercept Mapping team receives support from the SC Governor’s Challenge for Suicide Prevention and from the South Carolina Department of Veterans’ Affairs and continues to work closely with all the team stakeholders to maintain momentum toward the goal of reducing the county’s suicide rate.

The Pickens County Gun Lock and Safety Plan Pilot launched February 1, 2022, as a collaboration between Pickens County Veterans Affairs, Pickens County Sheriff’s Office, Pickens County Emergency Services, and the Columbia VA Health Center. This voluntary program offers free gun locks printed with the veterans crisis line number and access to a safety plan outline, providing individuals with an outline of what they will do to stay safe when experiencing a crisis and also putting more time between a suicidal thought and when he or she could pull the trigger of a loaded gun.

The county’s SMVF CIM work has been recognized by the community and by the military population the team strives to serve. Pickens County’s SMVF CIM Team Lead, Jessica Varney, was nominated by her peers as a Hometown Hero and was recognized by the Shaw Air Force Base 20th Fighter Wing during the Shaw Air and Space Expo. Additionally, the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds selected Varney for a flight in an F-16 Fighting Falcon as part of the aerial demonstration squadron’s Hometown Hero program, which salutes everyday American citizens doing amazing things in their communities all around the country.

Pickens County will continue to emphasize the importance of mental health for all citizens and especially those who are at higher risk of suicide, such as our military population. This May, as those who currently serve in the U.S. armed forces are recognized on Armed Forces Day, and as those who died while serving are remembered on Memorial Day, Pickens County will be mindful that all wounds are not visible and will continue to work to destigmatize mental health conditions.

SCAC Launches New Online Planning and Zoning Orientation Courses

SCAC has launched an updated online planning and zoning orientation course that consists of four modules. Each module lasts approximately 1.5 hours. Officials who complete all four modules will earn six hours of orientation training credit approved by the SC Planning Education Advisory Committee.

SCAC’s planning and zoning training classes are offered at no cost to county planning and zoning officials. To access the courses, you can use your Member Portal credentials that you use to register for events and other training opportunities. If you do not have an account, you can create one at: SCCounties.site-ym.com/.

PalmettoPride Announces Litter Crew Grant Recipients

PalmettoPride announced on Feb. 1 the grant recipients for its Litter Crew Grant (see below), providing local governments with funding and supplies needed for routine litter pickup on their roads.

“Our population has grown 23 percent in 20 years but the approach to litter prevention within infrastructure has remained largely reactive,” said Sarah Lyles, Executive Director of PalmettoPride. “Our local governments want to do more and we are here to help.”

The Litter Crew Grant is a competitive grant that provides funding of up to $25,000 to public service districts, municipalities, and counties to pay for litter removal crews. The governing organization will prioritize municipal- or county-maintained roads respectively, secondary state roadways as needed, and hot spots.

PalmettoPride has worked with multiple counties in establishing litter crew programs. Spartanburg County established the Litter Heroes program last summer, working with the Spartanburg Opportunity Center to employ up to four individuals experiencing homelessness or housing instability as part of a litter crew. Participants engaged in case management and life skills training as assigned prior to heading to the work site.

2020 County Census Profiles – Check them Out!

The U.S. Census Bureau’s searchable website allows users to drill down to specific datasets within a specific geographic area. Taking advantage of this powerful tool, SCAC has linked each county’s 2020 census profile to the corresponding county’s information page on the SCAC website. Information includes 2020 county population, demographics, income and poverty, educational attainment, employment, housing, economic, and health data. This information can be accessed at SCCounties.org. On SCAC’s home page, click on Resources and then County Information. Select a county from the table and scroll to 2020 Census County Profile.

Stay in the Know with SCAC’s Friday Report

The legislative session will be wrapping this May. To stay informed, be sure to read SCAC’s Friday Report. The reports are prepared and sent via e-mail every Friday during the legislative session. This publication keeps county officials informed about legislation that affects county government operations. It may be the only place that certain bills of interest to county officials are discussed in detail, and it provides a forum to discuss the impact of legislation upon county functions. Please contact SCAC if you would like to receive an emailed version of the Friday Report. You may also read the Friday Report online at SCCounties.org/friday-reports.
Jamie Nelson, Director of Spartanburg County Environmental Enforcement Department stated, “Until individuals—whether living in or traveling through our beautiful state—choose not to litter or ensure a vehicle’s load is properly secured, we will have the need for routine pickups along our roadways systems.”

“When elected officials and administrations add regular litter pickup on roadways, we can create a culture change from the top down,” said Lyles.

The role of volunteers in litter prevention is at the heart of PalmettoPride. Because of the population increase and volume of traffic, many roads that were safe for volunteers are no longer safe. With litter pickup as part of routine maintenance, volunteers can focus on caring for neighborhoods and public green spaces.

“We all have a part to play in litter prevention,” said Lyles.

In addition to litter pickup, the recipients must also coordinate a litter prevention campaign to accompany pickup.

PalmettoPride maintains that litter prevention is best, but pickup is an important part of litter prevention. Routine pickup helps to reduce litter on the roads and to foster community pride.

The Big Red Barn Retreat Helps First Responders

Sutton Shaw, Executive Director, The Big Red Barn Retreat

Being on the front lines of serving the community and being exposed to critical incidents almost daily takes its toll on our first responders’ mental health and wellness.

“PTSD is real,” Richland County Sheriff Leon Lott said. “I’ve watched numerous deputies struggle with PTSD due to critical incidents.”

It is estimated that 30 to 40 percent of first responders are struggling with mental health challenges. However, the vast majority do not seek help because it is inaccessible or ineffective. So, many live a life of struggle, suffering, and quiet desperation. The dangers and uncertainty of the Covid pandemic have contributed to their struggle. A new, innovative approach is available at the Big Red Barn Retreat and it’s called Warrior PATHH.

Warrior PATHH helps first responders learn to transform their struggle into profound strength and lifelong growth. The program begins with a seven-day immersive training... held onsite at the Big Red Barn Retreat and is facilitated by graduates of the Warrior PATHH program. Participants are educated on the impact of struggle on the mind, body, heart and spirit; and that they can find gain in loss and purpose in pain. They learn recognized techniques to regulate their thoughts, feelings, and actions; and are given the opportunity to make peace with their past experiences and struggle.

“I have seen firsthand the great results of this program…they save lives!” says Sheriff Lott. The program is free to participants and open to police, EMT, and fire fighters that have been involved in a critical incident. Moreover, participants must participate in the weekly online classes and wellness checks for up to 18 months following the initial training.

Since launching the Warrior PATHH program at the Big Red Barn Retreat, 19 classes, made up of both veterans and first responders, have finished the seven-day initial training. Each class has up to seven participants and there are separate classes for males and females. Overall, graduates of the program report a 56 percent reduction in their PTSD symptoms as well as report experiencing closer and improved relationships, increased sense of personal strength, and a 58 percent positive spiritual or existential change.

“What they’re doing here is really amazing,” said Robert Stevens, former police officer and Warrior PATHH alumni. “They give you the training you need to deal with the struggle you’re dealing with,” says Stevens. Based on his experiences dealing with mental health struggles as a police officer, Stevens believes first responders don’t feel safe to open up with what they are struggling with for fear that they will ultimately lose their job and be unable to provide for their family. Stevens firmly believes Warrior PATHH is the change needed in the first responder community to get rid of the stigma that exists around mental health.

Big Red Barn Retreat hopes to expand the Warrior PATHH program to meet the ever-increasing demand among first responders from across the state with American Rescue Plan grant funding. For more information about Warrior PATHH, call (803) 716-9097 or email info@thebigredbarnretreat.org.

Lancaster County Council Demonstrates Commitment to Education

Lancaster County Council as a group has achieved the feat of each member graduating from the Institute of Government for County Officials!

The Institute of Government for County Officials is a training program designed to equip county officials with the tools needed to enhance their skills and abilities to function more effectively in their positions. The Institute is provided by SCAC in cooperation with the Joseph P. Riley Jr. Center for Livable Communities at the College of Charleston, and Clemson University’s Master of Public Administration Program is a sponsor.

Each council member has completed at a minimum 27 hours of Level I coursework which includes topics such as legal issues, public budgeting, planning and land use, and ethical leadership. Furthermore, most of the council members have graduated from Level II which is accomplished by completing 18 hours of more advanced coursework, and those that have yet to graduate from Level II are working towards it.

The council in Lancaster County is composed of seven members each elected by single-member district. Term lengths are for four years. Lancaster County’s 2020 Census Population was 90,016.

SCAC applauds Lancaster County Council’s dedication to education!
National County Government Month is officially celebrated every year in April. But now is the perfect time to create public awareness about the services county governments provide, and to educate students on the subject.

Partnering with iCivics, NACo has created a full curriculum to educate students in grades six through 12 on the important role and functions of county government. The curriculum, including an online game, “Counties Work,” helps educators prepare lessons on county government.

Visit naco.org/counties/icivics to view a webinar overview of updated resources. Then, use the resources to educate students on county government.

When National County Government Month is officially celebrated next April, your students will be educated on the subject. You’ll be prepared to celebrate. You’ll also be educating future county leaders!

SC Housing Helps South Carolina Residents Serving Communities Achieve Homeownership

By Chris Winston
Chief Communications Officer
SC Housing

With home prices and interest rates on the rise, achieving the goal of homeownership can be a challenge for many South Carolina residents.

With this in mind, SC Housing continues to work to help Palmetto State residents who serve their communities achieve that dream with down payment assistance and low-interest home loans through the Palmetto Heroes program.

The program recognizes designated community service members, such as first-responders, teachers, and others, who provide vital support to their community. This year, the 2022 Palmetto Heroes program will assist qualifying South Carolina educators, law enforcement, corrections professionals, firefighters, emergency medical service personnel, licensed medical professionals, members of the U.S. Armed Services, S.C. Army National Guard and S.C. Air National Guard, and veterans.

Eligible Palmetto Heroes homebuyers can get a low, fixed-rate mortgage through SC Housing’s First-time Homebuyer Program, as well as $10,000 in forgivable down payment assistance. The program has helped more than 1,800 homeowners purchase homes in excess of $237 million over the past 15 years.

“At a time, when our state is experiencing mounting strains on our educators, programs like Palmetto Heroes helps to put homeownership in reach for those dedicated teachers whose paychecks are already stretched,” said
Steve Clements, director of single-family programs at SC Housing, “Home ownership is one of the country’s most valuable tools to build wealth, and we are proud to help families attain this goal at a challenging time.”

The program is available on a first-come, first-served basis, and borrowers must have an executed sales contract on a home. Mortgage loans are for 30 years and are available through any of SC Housing’s network of more than 100 participating lenders statewide. Borrower(s) must meet SC Housing’s first-time homebuyer requirements, as well as income requirements based on location and household size, which are available on the agency’s website. The program may not be used for refinancing.

Each year, the program is in high demand and loan reservations are typically exhausted within a few months. For more information about the Palmetto Heroes program or other SC Housing homeownership programs, contact SC Housing at (803) 896-2211 or visit the agency’s website: schousing.com.

State’s Broadband Office Promotes Collaboration Through Online Tools for Successful Internet Expansion

Online tools available through the South Carolina Broadband Office on SCdigitaldrive.org will be a vital element to the success of broadband expansion projects throughout our state. Through these online tools, Internet Service Providers (ISPs), as well as state and local leadership, can access:

- past, current, and future grant opportunities;
- a map of all available investments (accessible via the “Stakeholders” tab);
- the ability to upload projects and location data for communal awareness;
- a form to provide comments and feedback regarding challenges and potential solutions;
- a web-mapping application for determining eligibility of state-funded grants; and
- dashboards that provide analytics and other helpful information.

“As a team, we must constantly communicate and cooperate with each other to make the most of these funds and prevent overbuilding broadband infrastructure in an area that’s already been funded,” said Jim Stritzinger, Director of the S.C. Broadband Office, which is housed within the S.C. Office of Regulatory Staff (ORS). “Both the online tools we provide, as well as the transparency we promote between state and local governments, are the keys to minimize project duplication.”

Online tools offered on SCdigitaldrive.org encourage efficiency, which opens the door to the expansion of broadband investments across the state. Rural portions of South Carolina present the greatest challenge, but collaboration between all levels of government may ensure that more South Carolinians will have access to high-speed internet in an expeditious manner.

For questions regarding resources available on SCdigitaldrive.org, contact James Stritzinger, Director SC Broadband Office or Michael Herzberger, Deputy Director SC Broadband Office, ORS Staff at Broadband@ors.sc.gov. For additional information about the ORS and its mission, visit ors.sc.gov.
